ABSTRACT

The directory lists approximately 120 library information service programs in residential facilities for the mentally retarded. Each program is described in terms of its collection (journals, books, films, and tapes), space, services (story hours, reference questions, bibliographies, and translation services), budget, clientele, and program summary. Charts provide an overview of the individual programs, staff and resources in the residential facilities polled in 1970 as well as the audiovisual materials and equipment reported by the same institutions in 1971. A personnel directory lists librarians and audiovisual specialists by state and alphabetically. Programs are listed by state location. (GW)

Acknowledgements

I wish to thank all the people who have so generously helped to produce this document. Most of the tedious work fell to the individuals who typed the manuscript and addressed envelopes. Many others contributed a wide variety of supportive services ranging from encouragement to underwriting the printing costs. A special debt of gratitude is due to every individual in each of the institutions who completed one of the lengthy questionnaires. If some recognition for the field of library and information services results from this directory, it will be primarily because of their contributions.

G.M.M.

Introduction

An almost unanimous failing of directories is that they are never accurate. The nature of the data gathering process and the problems of compilation are so time-consuming that the information is always out of date when it is published.

This particular directory is no exception: in most cases changes in the staff, collection or other resources have occurred. The overall picture is accurately represented, however, and it is not the exactness of the figures but rather the pattern of services and the relative comprehensiveness of the libraries that is the important finding to emphasize.

The goals of the project are threefold: (1) to permit residential facilities to compare their programs with others in the country, (2) to allow librarians and audiovisual specialists working in the field to gain some insight into the activities and resources of their sister organizations, and (3) to provide a basis for sharing of materials, skills and ideas among facilities with similar populations and interests.

There are, of course, a number of resource centers that were not polled, for example, various community organizations and the University Affiliated Centers. This is, nonetheless, the first large scale attempt to identify libraries and information centers in the field of mental retardation. It is hoped that the information will be of genuine value to the field.

Part One
Program Information

The following information was gathered by means of a questionnaire distributed in 1970. Additional facts were acquired from a follow-up postcard mailed in January, 1971. The following section represents summaries of the information received from each institution from both of these sources. The names of the superintendents of each facility were taken from the January, 1971 Directory, National Association of Superintendents for Residential Facilities for Mentally Retarded. The "Q" in the upper right hand corner indicates when the questionnaire was received from the institution. "P.C." means that the postcard information was received on the date noted. An absence of response opposite any of the entries means that no figures were given or that the service is not part of the library program. "X" indicates a service but no specific numbers were provided. No salary figures are included in the budget information category. ESEA Title I and II, and LSCA Title IV-A are always entered under resident library services. National Library of Medicine grants are considered part of the programs of the Staff Library.

Part Two
Summaries

Total Programs

Audiovisual Program

The summaries of programs are presented in two separate resumes. The first identifies individual programs, staff and resources in the residential facilities polled in 1970. The second is concerned with the audiovisual materials and equipment reported by these same institutions in January, 1971. The charts are designed to give a quick overview of the extent of information services provided by any individual facility. They also permit the reader to compare programs between and among residential institutions.
